1. General Information

1.1 Introduction of Hefei

Hefei, the capital city of Anhui Province, is an important central city in the Yangtze River Delta region.

The city covers a total administrative area of 11,445 square kilometers, including 780 square kilometers of Chaohu Lake, and has a permanent population of 10.002 million.

Hefei administers five county-level jurisdictions—Feidong, Feixi, Changfeng, Lujiang, and Chaohu Lake—four urban districts—Yaohai, Luyang, Shushan, and Baohe—and four development zones: Hefei High-Tech Industrial Development Zone, Hefei Economic and Technological Development Zone, Xinzhan High-Tech Zone, and Anchao Economic Development Zone.

Since the Eighteenth National Congress of the Communist Party of China,

General Secretary Xi Jinping has visited Anhui Province on three occasions and personally inspected Hefei, praising the city as “a place well-suited for living” and “a world of innovation.”

Hefei’s gross domestic product increased from RMB 416.8 billion in 2012 to RMB 1,350.77 billion in 2024. Its national ranking among Chinese cities rose from 31st to 19th, and among provincial capitals from 15th to 10th.

Hefei possesses distinctive advantages for hosting major sporting events. Located between the Yangtze and Huaihe Rivers, the city is home to the Binhu National Forest Park, an ecological oasis within the urban area. With numerous historical and cultural landmarks such as Bao Park and Xiaoyaojin Park, Hefei enjoys a profound cultural heritage. As a modern city, Hefei has experienced rapid urban development, strong public enthusiasm for sports participation, and a vibrant, dynamic urban atmosphere.

1.2 Weather

Hefei is situated in a mid-latitude region and enjoys a subtropical monsoon-influenced humid climate. It features pronounced monsoonal patterns, distinct seasons, mild temperatures, and moderate rainfall.

The annual average temperature stayed above 15.7°C, with average annual precipitation of approximately 1,000 millimeters. It receives around 2,000 hours of sunshine per year, enjoys an average frost-free period of 228 days, and has an average relative humidity of 77%.

Climate Characteristics of Hefei:

Spring is marked by frequent interactions between cold and warm air masses, often leading to changeable weather with alternating sunny and rainy days, as well as sudden shifts between warmth and chill. Summer is the longest season, characterized by hot weather and concentrated rainfall, which is primarily heavy and intense. The majority of precipitation occurs during the Meiyu season (East Asian rainy season) in May and June.

Fall is the shortest season, during which temperatures drop rapidly with predominantly clear and pleasant days. Winter is relatively cold, featuring infrequent rain or snow and an abundance of sunny weather.

1.3 Airport

Hefei Xinqiao International Airport

IATA: HFE / ICAO: ZSOF

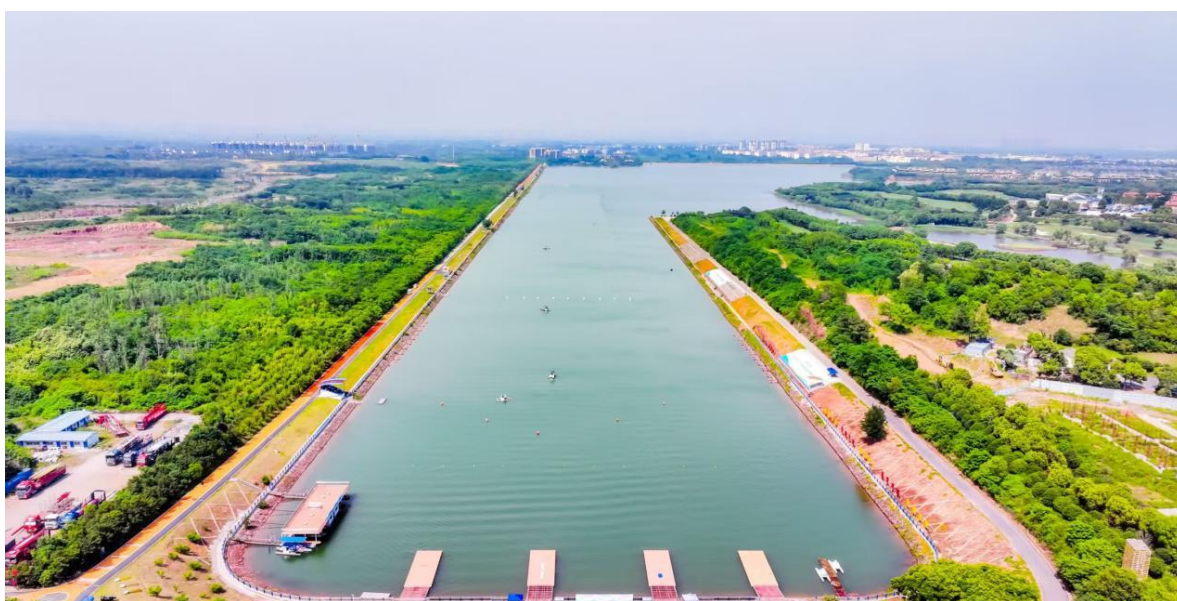

The airport is approximately 40 kilometers from the competition venue (Anhui Provincial Water Sports Management Center), with an estimated driving time of about 50 minutes.

1.4 The Competition Venues

The Anhui Water Sports Administration Center (Anhui Provincial Water Sports Base) was completed and put into operation in 2008. The training and competition watercourse measures 2,510 meters in length and varies in width from 162 meters to 690 meters, with an average water depth of 2 to 3 meters throughout the year, the total water surface area is approximately 1,179,853 square meters. The facility includes four athlete apartment buildings, accommodating approximately 300 residents, and two dining halls with seating capacity for up to 400 people at the same time.

The supporting facilities include 12 boathouses, two strength and conditioning halls, one basketball gymnasium, one rowing tank, one 50-meter swimming pool, and one medical clinic, with a total built-up area of approximately 23,414.46 square meters. Outdoor supporting facilities include a boat storage area exceeding 5,000 square meters, capable of accommodating more than 1,000 boats and canoes. Additional outdoor sports and training venues include one basketball court, one tennis court, and one 200-meter athletics track. The total area of outdoor training grounds and related facilities is approximately 355,300 square meters.

Since 2023, the Center has hosted four national-level canoe sprint competitions and four national youth canoe sprint training camps, receiving more than 5,000 participants and accommodating over 4,000 boats and canoes. Through these events, a highly capable execution team has been developed, demonstrating strong capacity for efficient event hosting, reception, and logistical support.

By continuously organizing competitions, The Anhui Water Sports Administration Center has actively promoted innovation in water sports and contributed to the robust growth of related sports programs.
